The first church service and Sunday School classes will be held in the Spring Valley Community Center, Memory Lane off Bancroft Dr., on Sunday.

Phone Company Gets Rate Boost

The nickel phone call has gone to join the good five cent cigar.

The Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company has been granted a rate increase by the California Public Utilities Commission.

Every phone user in the area of the company will be affected by the new rates which become effective November 1.

The new pay booth rate is 10c. However, it will take the company eight months to make the change over from 5c calls. In the meantime the poor, impoverished company has been granted a small increase to compensate for the time it takes to make the change.

A permanent increase in the San Diego area will be:

One-party resident, up 30c a month; 2-party up 25c; 4-party up 20c.

Individual line flat rate business phone, up 75c.

Individual line message rate business phone, up 25c.

Now if this increase will produce more phones for those who have urgent need for them, the public will accept the raise in good grace.

Fries Paintings at Local Library

Paintings by the late Charles A. Fries, remembered as the dean of San Diego artists, are being exhibited at Lemon Grove Library this month. An invitation is extended to the public to enjoy these lovely painting.

After inspection of the rack by the State Library Board, orders were placed for other county libraries in the State.

Many classes from Lemon Grove Schools have recently visited the Library to familiarize the pupils with library procedure and use of reference material.

A shipment of several hundred books, including fiction and non-fiction, is expected next week.

The Library will be closed tomorrow, (Friday) which is Columbus Day, but will be open all day Saturday.

Mr. Snyder's car ricochoted across the two lanes and miraculously did not collide with oncoming traffic. Mr. Olson suffered a bump on the head in striking the windshield.

Mr. Snyder's left arm was terribly mangled. Every bone in his hand and wrist were broken, bones in forearm splintered and the elbow crushed. Doctors credit a Marine from the Medical Corps just back from Korea, with making it possible to save the arm through first aid given. However, for several days the doctors expected to have to amputate the arm.

He had many blood transfusions and one operation by bone specialists but many more will be necessary when conditions of the arm are better.

Mr. Snyder is in Oceanside Hospital, Room 2. Mrs. Snyder has been driving back and forth to spend as much time as possible with him. Mrs Snyder went up today (Thursday) to spend their 14th wedding anniversary with him.

Plans for Big Scout Camporee

Camping skills and the proper preparation of food, clothing, and camping gear will be stressed at the Grossmont District Boy Scout Camporee, scheduled for November 3 and 4 at the Youth Center Grounds in Alpine.

Hailing the event as just the start of what is hoped to be a big season in camping and outdoor activities for the Scouts of the Grossmont area, the District Camping and Activities committee states that it has plans for a three-day primitive camp on the desert next spring, at which time the boys will each pack in sufficient food, water and gear to be self-sustaining.

Meanwhile, plans are progressing rapidly for the Camporee next month. A District Court of Honor, held around the campfire in the Oak Grove on the Youth Center grounds, will be open to Scouts receiving merit badges and the Star, Life, and Eagle ranks. Parents, friends and the general public will be invited to attend this ceremony. There will be a field meet on Sunday, with competition between troops and individual Scouts.

Plans have also been made for both Protestant and Catholic church services for the Scouts on Sunday morning.

Salvation Army Store Makes Life Easier

The Salvation Army Store, 3496 Main street, is helping many families and retired older folks meet the high cost of living. Twice a week shipments of used articles are brought out from the main store in San Diego.

However, Captain and Mrs. Thompson, managers of the store, state that they are happy to have individuals bring in clean used clothing, shoes, books, magazines, blankets, furniture, toys, kitchenware, patterns for sewing, toys or any other saleable articles.

The store has been operating a little over two years and has an average of 1,000 customers a month.

Rent, lights and other expenses are met entirely by local sales.

Many families in the lower wage brackets, especially those with several children, find it possible to keep their children well dressed for school by being able to buy clothing and shoes in the Salvation Army Store at low prices.

As the Christmas season approaches, many older folk are given work at headquarters getting the used toys ready for the less fortunate children.

These classes will be located in the buildings now occupied by the elementary students and will be known as the Lemon Grove Intermediate School.

of Main Street and the World

Banks Report Increased Farm Loans; Reds Ask Peace Talks Be Resumed

FARM REPORT—A recent survey of rural bankers in the home towns scattered across the great midwest farm belt presents a new and somewhat startling picture of farm economy in the nation. Briefly, the survey indicates that farmers are borrowing more money this year, for that matter, than in several years, to make ends meet from day to day.

Reports a Kentland, Ind., banker: Operational loan demands are terrific. Three years ago farmers of the area purchased machinery with cash and had a surplus for operational expenses. Today 65 to 75 per cent of machinery sales are on credit arrangements.

A South Dakota banker presents this picture: For the first eight months of 1951 bank loans have increased 25 per cent over last year.

Says an Iowa banker: Loans are up 15 per cent over last year. Capital is tied up in machinery and livestock.

Says a Dover, Minn., banker: About 90 per cent of the farm machinery sales in this area are on credit. Loans have increased 10 per cent.

These conditions, midwest bankers report, are caused by the continued decline of farm prices, nearly 7 per cent since they reached a record high last February. In addition, farm operating costs have continued to increase.

As examples, fertilizer, which was selling at $44 a ton F.O.B. Chicago last fall, now sells for $64 a ton. In Minnesota farm hands are drawing $15 a day without board, comparing to $10 a year ago. Iowa farmers who paid $11.75 a 100 for binding twine last year must now pay $16.75. These examples indicate, midwest bankers say, that overall farm costs are up approximately 15 per cent over last year and 2 per cent over February when farm prices began their decline.

The only solution, according to the U.S. department of agriculture, is to keep farm prices at a high level. To accomplish this the department is expected to start a campaign this fall urging farmers to withhold crops from market. At present only six of 30 major commodities are bringing the parity price declared by law to be equally fair to growers and those who buy their products.

Calm on 'Bloody Ridge'

GI's relax among blackened stumps of trees on the devastated slope that is known as "bloody ridge" on the east central front of Korea. This ridge was taken from the Communists after some of the hardest fighting in the Korean campaign.

MONTH OF DECISION—It may very well be that future generations of American school children will study the month of September, 1951, in their history books as the month of decision—the month during which the free world consolidated its position against communism.

For during the month four significant things happened:

(1) Forty-nine nations met in San Francisco and signed the Japanese peace treaty which put that nation firmly on the side of freedom.

(2) The ministers of France, Great Britain and the United States met in Washington and decided upon a contract with West Germany that amounts to a treaty and which will greatly increase West Germany's contribution to the defense of free Europe.

(3) Meeting in Ottawa, Canada, twelve Atlantic Pact countries debated and solved many military and economic problems related to their common defense.

(4) In Washington Italian and United States representatives discussed important revision in the Italian peace treaty, especially clauses relating to Italy's armed forces limitations.

All this activity adds up to strengthening of the free world's defenses against Communist aggression and thus, in turn, the very home towns of this country.

THE HALF WAR—One American soldier, who can be said to represent the average small town youth who makes up the United States army, said recently when informed that the Communists have unexpectedly asked for renewal of peace talks at Kaesong:

"Let's get this thing decided upon one way or another. "We've been half fighting and half not fighting for months now."

This attitude is typical of most American soldiers in Korea today. Foreign correspondents report the men want a definite yes-or-no answer to whether there will be peace or not. If it is to be a fight they want to get at it and gain a clear cut decision.

This attitude is becoming more and more apparent in the small towns of the nation, too. This business of talking while men fight on a limited scale is not the American way. If there is to be peace, the American reasons, let's have it without a lot of beating around the bush. If it is to be war, let it be all-out-war.

POSTAL RATES—The house-senate conference committee will report within a few days upon bills passed by the house and senate to increase rates on postcards, newspapers, magazines and some other types of mail and services.

Although the senate and house versions of the bill are different in some detail, the two bills are similar in that they would raise rates on second-class mail, which includes newspapers, magazines and other periodicals by 30 per cent over a three year period in stages of 10 per cent a year.

The bills are also in agreement on postal card rate increase from 1 cent to 2 cents.

The final version of the bill is expected to produce somewhere in the neighborhood of $126,000,000 of additional annual postal revenues.

POLITICAL SCENE—Following his visit to North Dakota, Sen. Robert Taft returned to his home in Cincinnati where he told reporters: "If I got the same reception in a few more states, I think I'd decide to run (for president)."

And while the senator was making this statement, reports from Europe continued to circulate that Gen. Dwight Eisenhower was definitely interested in becoming a candidate, but only on the Republican ticket. The general, observers reported, would reject the Democratic bid because he did not want to be hampered by hanger-ons.

As for Senator Taft, observers said Eisenhower would try to beat him out because he felt the Ohio solon's isolation reputation would ruin this country's defense program and battle against communism.

PAY INCREASE—The house passed a series of bills increasing the pay of more than 1,500,000 government employes by a total of $670,045,600 a year. The bill will be reported soon from senate-house conference where differences will be ironed out between it and a senate version previously passed.

The house version provides: (1) A flat $400 pay increase for 1,043,614 government workers—totaling $417,445,600; (2) increases of $400 to $700 a year for 500,000 postal workers—totaling $235,760,000 annually; (3) an $800 limit on increases for 42,000 postmasters and 26,000 postal supervisors—totaling $19,690,000 annually.

DEFENSE PRODUCTION

50,000 Annual Plane Output Possible

Manly Fleischmann, defense production administrator, reports the nation will soon have the capacity to pour out 30,000 tanks and 50,000 planes a year—plus strategic stockpiles "to carry us through a year of total war."

In a speech at the 70th American Federation of Labor convention in San Francisco, he said stockpiles of strategic materials needed to carry through a year of all-out conflict would be available even though the United States is cut off temporarily from all foreign sources.

He also pointed out that steel capacity will be up 18,000 tons over the output before the Korean war and there now is a 93 per cent increase in primary aluminum capacity, with proportionate increases in electric power.

THEFT SUSPECT JAILED . . . Roscoe McKean struggles with detectives as he is booked at University jail, Los Angeles, as Leimert park thief suspect. He said he was an ex-inmate of Minnesota reformatory and had given tip that guards had beaten George Sturdevant of Los Angeles to death. "If they send me back to Minnesota, I know they'll kill me," McKean pleaded. "Do you think they'd let me live after I named those guards?" He was held on suspicion of burglary.

TRAIN DEMOLISHES DEPOT . . . Railroad officials are seeking the cause of a freak accident which recently killed one person and injured five others when a Monon railroad streamliner failed to take a curve and plowed into the center stone Monon railroad station. The ill-fated train was bound to Chicago from Louisville. Photo shows the demolished railroad station and the wreckage of two of the units of the diesel locomotive that pulled the fast streamliner before the wreck.

FAIR WEATHER . . . The time for state and county fairs and fall festivals is with us again with its fair weather and ladies fair, and the Los Angeles county fair in Pomona, Calif., is following tradition in this picture with its display of beauty and fine livestock. Just to be sure a blue ribbon Suffolk lamb will look its best, Betty Wilson adds a few final touches to its grooming.

FORMER RIVALS SHAKE HANDS . . . New York Governor Thomas E. Dewey is greeted by President Truman at the White House as Dewey called to confer with the President on far-eastern matters. The conference marked the first time that Dewey, twice-unsuccessful GOP presidential candidate, has been in the White House during the six years of Mr. Truman's administration. The New York governor had just returned from a trip to Japan and other eastern countries.

UMPIRE DIES . . . Bill Klem, National League umpire, died recently in Miami at the age of 77, death being attributed to a heart ailment. He was an umpire for 36 years and worked in 18 world series, more than any other man in history.

NATO SCHOOL HEAD . . . Vice Admiral Andre Lemonnier of France heads the North Atlantic defense organization's "West Point" in Paris to train officers and senior officials. He continues as General Eisenhower's naval deputy.

GIANT MUSHROOM . . . Joe Piccioli, 45, of Chicago, Ill., displays a huge mushroom that he found in the vicinity of Waugonda, Ill. The huge vegetable tipped the scales at a little over 30 pounds. The diameter measured approximately two feet.

TO WED NICKY HILTON . . . Betsy Von Furstenberg, 19, movie starlet, is engaged to Nicky Hilton, Elizabeth Taylor's one-time husband. She was born Countess Caroline Maria Felicitas Agatha Elizabeth Von Furstenberg-Herdringen, too long for a stage name.

MISSING DIPLOMAT'S WIFE . . . Mrs. Melinda MacLean, wife of British diplomat, Donald MacLean, returns to London from the Riviera. She was reported to have disappeared for a time to join her husband.

THE WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

Scott's Report

CONGRESSMAN Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania deserves a medal for high-jumping at conclusions. With considerable flourishes and a great air of being in the know, Scott announced that General Eisenhower would accept the Republican nomination.

However, here is an almost verbatim account of Congressman Scott's talk with General Ike in Paris, on which the Pennsylvania Congressman based his earth-shaking prediction:

Scott asked Eisenhower if there was any "hope" of Ike's accepting a GOP draft nomination for the White House.

Scott added: "I know you're a good Republican, General—isn't that a fact?"

Before Eisenhower could reply, an aide, Brig. Gen. Charles T. Lanham, who was present at the meeting, broke in jokingly:

"I've never heard the General say anything to indicate that he isn't a good Republican.

This struck Eisenhower as so funny that he reared back and let go with a belly laugh that almost shook the window panes.

Ike made no further comment, but Congressman Scott took this guffaw to mean that Ike not only was a good Republican—which nobody denies—but would consent to lead the party in the 1952 election.

Labor Flirts With Taft

Most important backstage move in the works by a small group at the A. F. of L. convention in San Francisco is to dump Truman and patch up labor relations with the chief author of the Taft-Hartley Act, Sen. Robert Alphonso Taft.

This move is certain to be denied, but here is the master-minding behind this strategy.

A group of Republicans inside the A. F. of L. high command went to San Francisco with the idea of going back to the old Sam Gompers policy of keeping labor aloof from either political party. Headed by Canny Bill Hutcheson, head of the carpenters union, long a GOP stalwart, the group includes George Meany, influential secretary of the A. F. of L.; and Dave Beck, number two man in the teamster union.

The question of sticking with the Democrats has come up at almost every A. F. of L. meeting recently. And a majority in the past has won out on the plea that labor would get a black eye if it turned on the political party which pulled it out of the depression years during FRD's day and battled the Taft-Hartley Act during Truman's day.

But now the following deal with Taft is being discussed by one or two in the A. F. of L. high command.

In return for dumping Harry Truman, Taft would agree to amend the Taft-Hartley Act. In fact, he has already introduced a bill in the Senate to help out the building trades which has all the earmarks of a deal with GOP Bill Hutcheson of the carpenters. The Taft concession violates all of Taft's previous moral principles and repeals not only part of the Taft-Hartley Act but the Wagner Act. For it not only would abolish elections in building trades unions but would protect the union from any unfair labor practices charge by another union.

In brief, this would permit an employer to back an election with a phony union which in no way represented his men.

Lewis Plots

Meanwhile, another labor move outside the A. F. of L. is being hatched by John L. Lewis and Harry Bridges, head of the west coast longshoremen, who was kicked out of the CIO after his conviction for having lied about being a communist.

Bridges has sounded out the retail clerks, the carpenters, and other west coast labor men on staging a giant rally in Los Angeles on October 8, the same day President Truman is slated to attend a $100 Democratic dinner in Los Angeles. Chief Speaker at the labor rally would be doughty John L., long a bitter Truman enemy, who, it is planned, would blast both the President and auto workers chief Walter Reuther.

Washington Pipeline

Senator O'Mahoney of Wyoming complained over the phone to Assistant Secretary of Defense Anna Rosenberg that the defense department wasn't getting enough credit for its painstaking work in formulating the $60,000,000,000 defense budget. . . . Congress soon will pass a resolution, sponsored by Rep. Peter Rodino of New Jersey, demanding that Czechoslovakia release another American prisoner, John Hvasta.

TRAFFIC FATALITIES

1,000,000th Traffic Death Will Occur During December

About the middle of December the 1,000,000th traffic death will occur in the United States.

It is shocking to realize that since the turn of the century, since the first automobile chugged and hissed to the derision and excitement of a horse-drawn era, the lives of almost 1,000,000 men, women and children have been squandered in one of the most senseless and tragic wastes of modern times.

There are numerous reasons for this great accident death rate. While most states have a statute requiring examination for driver's license, only a few administer the law strictly enough to give it meaning. Thousands of drivers lack the skills, physical faculties and mental attitudes for safe driving. Re-examination of older drivers or those who have been involved in accidents or violations is virtually nonexistent.

Only 13 states permit tests of blood alcohol to be used in court against the most reprehensible motoring miscreant — the drinking driver.

Engineering and road building have fallen far behind the demands of the motor age. Lack of funds is the common excuse.

Automatic revocation of a driver's license for serious misconduct is invoked all too seldom. Jail sentences are few. The system of fines and penalties throughout the nation is a hodgepodge of improvisation, the temper of the court, and the stature and legal counsel of the defendant.

These are but a few of the more obvious holes in the dike of traffic safety. They can be plugged, but only through the aroused interest and insistent support of people who care.

Safety authorities report the most shocking thing about the accident toll is the inescapable fact that few Americans feel any real personal concern. As their fellows perish about them, they look on with a detachment and complacency that is difficult to understand and even more difficult to alter.

There rests the keystone of the entire traffic safety structure—personal concern. The duty of every responsible citizen is to strive for traffic safety as a voter, as a volunteer worker in whatever capacity his interests and abilities direct, and as a driver and pedestrian. Even the relatively small percentage of accidents caused by mechanical failure of motor vehicles could be reduced if owners would make sure their cars are in safe condition.

The question remains: what will it take to spur the nation into action? Will it be 1,000,000 deaths?

DONNA REED and John Derek make such an excellent team in "Saturday's Hero," a timely and truthful picture of college football, that Columbia promptly teamed them again in "The Dark Page." In New York to promote the picture they were being run ragged, what with meeting the mayor, keeping radio and television dates, and appearing at ceremonies all over town. At lunch Derek could hardly eat; the hardy veteran of those really tough football sequences was booked to appear on TV that night and was really scared. Donna wasn't afraid of anything except that her young family might need her before she gets home; her son's just a year old.

Donna Corcoran will become Metro's new Margaret O'Brien, if the executives' wishes come true. The nine-year-old has appeared in two pictures, "Angels in the Outfield" and "Young Man in a Hurry" and will star in her third.

Maureen O'Hara must like costume pictures, she makes so many of them. Her latest assignment is "Against All Flags," for Universal-International; she'll play the leader of a band of pirates, in the 18th century.

Here's something really new. Paramount will hold the first showing of "My Favorite Spy," new Bob Hope-Hedy Lamarr comedy, in the home of a movie fan, complete with guest stars and spotlights. Just write the winning letter stating "Why I would like to have 'My Favorite Spy' premiered in my home," address it to Bob Hope Contest, Box 382, Hollywood, California, and if you win you'll get the works. Bob is publicizing the contest for the next few weeks on his new NBC radio series. Good luck!

THE FICTION CORNER
THE TRAP

By Daniel Shifren

"Trist!" Howie called again. "Trist! Over here!"

Tristam Olds set the rake against the barn and ran over the knoll to the orchard.

3-Minute Fiction

Howie was bundled against a tree, trussed wrist and ankle, very pale.

"Goodnesh, Boss-sh!" whooshed from Trist's dry, thin lips as he undid the bonds.

"There, that's good enough. I'll finish by myself. Get to the barn fast. It may be ablaze by now."

Trist, amazement on his whisker-framed face, jounced his aging bones and came up the incline breathing hard.

Flame licked over the haymow. He swept up two pails and raced down to the pump. Howie came running too.

They scampered around for half an hour. At last the smoke began to trail away.

"That's for now," said Howie, "but we'll have to keep a sharp lookout."

When Sheriff Gunfrey arrived, Howie had changed clothes and was rocking on the porch.

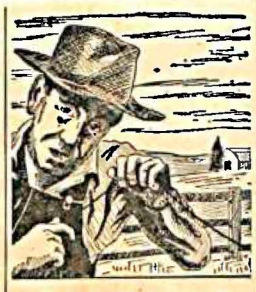
"What's all this about burnin' barns down? Hasn't been anything like this since I copped the election."

"They tried it right enough," said Howie. "Know of any strangers in town?"

"Nope," said Gunfrey.

"Well, little matter. They're from somewheres round here. But I guess either Sholl or Long is the guilty party—either one or both."

Gunfrey fired the crusty cake in his pipe and puffed. "How you figure that, Howie? They're neighbors, man."



He led a coil of black wire through deep grass until he reached the pine tree. He attached the wire to the house bell.

"In the last couple weeks they tried to buy out my farm. Kept upping the price, but I told 'em 'No.' I got no yen to sell this place."

"Did they make any threats?"

"They sure wasn't pleased."

"Hm. I'll hunt around town and ask 'em some questions. Ring me anything turns up."

HOWIE and Trist alternated on lookout. Chores were left undone. Then, during the night before Howie told Trist to discontinue the watches, he slipped out to the barn and emerged with a shovel and trowel. He worked and as light gray rose over the horizon, he laid out the last strips of straw and grass, returned the tools to the barn and came back.

He led a coil of black wire through deep grass until he reached the pine tree. He wound the wire around and attached the house bell he had in his back pocket.

The next morning he said to Trist, "No use to keep up the watches. They're not likely to come back."

Trist grunted. "Sure. Might'sh well get back to work."

The unexpected shrill of the house bell came that night. Howie rushed out without donning trousers, Trist behind him crying, "What's that bell for!" But Howie did not answer.

He swept the pit with a powerful flash, picking up their figures. One's bandanna slipped as he tried to escape the slippery pit and he recognized Jerry, Trist's youngest son.

The boy's eyes, large with fright, lit on Trist and he cried out, "Dad!"

Howie's flash went out then. He heard them stumbling away.

The telephone rang before Howie could make his call. It was Gunfrey.

"Which one of 'em was it bought out Trist's boys to fire my barn, Gunfrey?"

Gunfrey said, "You were right, Howie, I didn't know—I mean about Trist."

"More the boys. They wanted the money bad. Trist couldn't do nothing with 'em. Afraid they'd get caught so he kept his mouth shut."

"Howie, I broke Long down. He tried to blame Sholl, but I got him to admit something like what he was up to."

"I was thinkin' I'd hate to prosecute anyone seein's no harm done. . . ."

"I don't want you to, Sheriff, only . . ."

"Yeh, I thought about that." Gunfrey laughed his cackle. "Long won't be around after tomorrow. I'm lettin' him leave town."

Socialism in England Is Popular With Laborers

By Wright A. Patterson

THE DEFINITELY ANNOUNCED purpose of the English Labor party is to equalize the wealth and the income of the English people. That is a vote-catching program, especially in England, and it is a program which the party can carry out. It can and is being done through taxes. On an income, which in America would be considered of a reasonable amount, the government is taking ninety five cents out of each dollar. Through taxes, it is easy to pull down the higher incomes, and through "doles" it is easy to increase the lower ones.

But the problem that must be faced is where the "something for nothing" that represent doles is to come from when the wealth of the nation has been taxed to extinction.

Socialized medicine guarantees every one in the British islands a doctor when needed, a place in a hospital when there is a vacancy, which means waiting as much as two years regardless of the urgency of the need.

It means cheap doctor bills, but it is killing the medical profession in England. The doctor is permitted to have as many as 4,000 patients, for which the government will pay him $2.10 per year per patient, then promptly tax that doctor some 50 per cent on his $8,000 income. With what is left he must provide all the expenses of medical practice.

The result is that there is no inducement for the new medical graduate to hang out his shingle in Britain. He goes to the dominions—to Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa. The result will be that in time there will be no doctors to administer to the poor, at any price or on any condition.

On top of the income tax that runs to as high as 95 per cent, there is a purchase tax—our sales tax—which the merchants collect on every item you buy, other than the dire necessities of living, and that purchase tax ranges from 25 per cent on the amount of the purchase to as high as 150 percent of the total, on such automobiles as can be purchased, which is practically none of English make. They are produced for export only, as is true of most other of the better grade English productions.

And along with these conditions there is the rationing. Each individual can have two strips of bacon per week, two eggs, and whatever amount of meat of any kind he can buy for ten cents, with meat selling at prices as high, or higher, than we are paying in this country. Such are but a few examples of English rationing.

Despite it all, English socialism is not too unpopular with the English workers. They are receiving more wages than they did, though they are paying far more taxes, far more living expenses, and living far less better.

Believing the program to be a vote-catcher, the Conservatives, like the Republicans in this country, as applied to the New Deal and Fair Deal programs, are inclined to approve it all, only claiming they could do a better job.

The Conservatives are against the Labor Party, but are for the Labor Party program, and they will not get any farther than the Republicans will get on the same basis in this country.

The Fair Deal does not offer their program as socialistic. It is offered as welfare state, or "planned economy," but the purpose is the same, that of equalizing the incomes of the American people.

Should the Fair Deal continue in office, it will succeed in putting over its nefarious schemes. When they do, there will be nothing left for America but bankruptcy; there will be nothing left with which to provide the "something" for those who are clamoring for "something for nothing" so they may continue to live without effort on their part.

When they understand what is being offered them such conditions will not be favored by a majority of the American people. Will the Republicans tell us what the party proposes as its program, or must we continue on the socialistic trail?

Gen. Ike will not get a two party and probably not a one party nomination for the presidency.

WOMAN'S WORLD

Knitted, Crocheted Garments Need Careful Home Treatment

By Ertta Haley

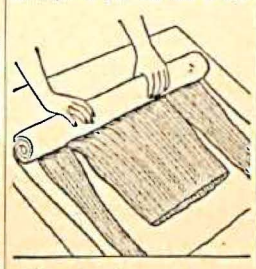
HAVE you started wearing knitted dresses and sweaters by this time? By this time college and career girls, as well as homemakers whose children are going to school are casting an eye on those knitted things, wondering just how best to clean them for most wear.

Knitwear is practical as well as smart because the clothing is designed for all occasions and because it gives freedom of movement. Many sweaters and similar garments are, however, needlessly ruined because of shrinkage and matting with poor laundering methods. It just doesn't have to be, you know!

Fortunately knitwear need cause no laundering headaches or cleaning bills because it can be done safely at home, and in speedy time, if you just use the simplest of precautions.

The biggest mistake made in doing the cleaning at home is hot water. This causes wool fibers to lock, thus shrinking the garment as well as matting it. These are then stiff, uncomfortable and unattractive. Water for washing knitwear should be almost cool.

Most women are so accustomed to rubbing sleeves, cuffs and collars on their other garments that they don't stop to think this should not be done with wool. Squeezing is the technique to use, and this is possible even on the soiled parts if you'll use one or two fingers for the job.



Absorb excess moisture in towel . . .

Sweaters and dresses can easily stretch out of shape if they are dipped in and out of the water, whether for washing or rinsing. The garment should, at all times while it is in the water be supported with one hand, so that the weight of the water cannot run to one part and cause it to get out of shape.

Keep Outline Patterns Of Knitted Clothes

If you have some new sweaters or other knitted wear, it's a good idea to draw outlines of the garment on heavy brown paper, even if they're worn. This is their size and shape and the original measurements should be kept.

When you have already worn the garment, try to get an outline of it before washing, so you'll have some idea of how it's to look after washing. Lay the garment out flat on the paper and simply draw around it with a heavy pencil.

After washing set this outline out where the garment is to be dried, away from heat or direct sunlight and pat the sweater or whatever pin to pattern for drying to size.

clothing you have on it. Small pins can be used to secure it, and it will then dry to the exact shape and size which it was.

A firm surface such as the table in your laundry room is best for drying and pinning. Only rust-proof pins should be used, as the garment will be quite damp and you do not want rust stains which are difficult, if not impossible to remove.

Another good way to dry sweaters, especially is to use a stretcher or a form. In this case an outline is not necessary. Simply put the sweater on the form, and let it dry as though it were pinned, that is, in a place not too hot or cold, and not in direct sunlight.

Soft Water, Mild Suds Are Best for Wool

Hard water, naturally, will make a sweater or other knitted garment stiff, as it does any other, because the minerals in the water get into the fibers.

If the water in your area is hard, it's best to use a water conditioner in it before making suds for knitwear. Then have a basin full of almost cool water for detergent or very mild soapsuds. The sweater is then immersed in this and kept under the water while you squeeze the suds through and through it several times.

Spots on the sleeves, collar or body of the sweater are best treated before the sweater is immersed by sprinkling on some fine soap or detergent and working into the yarn carefully with the finger. Only gentle action should be used.

Soiled garments may have to be washed several times to get them really clean.

Rinse in two or even three waters, as cool as the washing water, after the sweater has come clean. In this case immerse again, and squeeze the clear water out rather than bringing the sweater out of the water.

Squeeze the garment gently after rinsing, and do not attempt to remove excess water by wringing. It's far better to leave some water in the sweater, for it can be absorbed by Turkish towels easily. This is done by rolling the sweater in it and kneading. Unroll at once.

For heavy or large sweaters, or for those garments which have contrasting colors, insert a towel between the back and the front for quick water absorption. Now the sweater can be pinned to the outline or inserted on a form.

Infrequent Use of Knits Often Leads to Damage

Knitted garments which are used only occasionally require good care and frequent checking against damage from rotting, mildew and moths.

Unless a woolen garment is absolutely clean before it is stored, it may readily rot and fade since perspiration and body waste cause damage to it, especially when standing.

Make it a habit to rinse a garment after wearing, and complete washing before it is put away in a drawer for any length of time.

Mildew in knitted wear often causes holes. This frequently happens to bathing suits which are rolled or sweaters which are folded before they are completely dry.

To protect against mildew, especially when you live where humidity is high, dry the garments out-of-doors in a good current of air before putting them away.

If you feel that it's difficult to get moisture out of garments, use a steam iron on them. After the clothing has been washed and dried, lay on the ironing board. Set the temperature dial for wool. Press with a gentle stamping motion, and under no circumstances should you move the iron back and forth.

Any laundered garment may be steam-pressed in the above manner to block it properly, and also to restore some of the original finish.

Moths may attack knitwear which is stored and not disturbed for a long length of time. Even though you aren't using these clothes, take them out periodically and air them in a good breeze. Also check for evidence of moths.

Chemicals used in pools will frequently attack bathing suits. Wash these in mild suds after each use to remove the chemicals.

These Tips Aid You In Care of Woolens

Sweaters, bathing suits, socks and gloves which are knitted or crocheted should each be stored in separate bags when not in use. This may sound like a lot of effort, but you'll be thankful for the extra precaution if moth damage strikes. If the garments are separated, one may suffer while the others go free, and this is naturally a saving worth the effort.

Small plastic bags, each containing one garment, can be placed in a large storage box or chest. When you have to air them out, they're all together, and you don't have to go into several different places to get to them.

Woolen socks should be washed just as the sweaters and other garments, but if they're heavily soiled, they may be soaked, provided this time is no longer than five minutes.

CLEM WHITAKER, Jr.

It can't happen in the United States of America!

That was the prideful, comforting boast in this Nation when Mussolini shackled the free press of Italy; when Hitler erased the free press of Germany; when Stalin denied a free press to Russia; when Peron arrogantly destroyed the freedom of the great daily La Prensa in Argentina.

But it has happened in the United States of America!

By direct order of the President of the United States, Harry Truman of Missouri, the American press has been muzzled in the pious name of "security." No federal employee in the Executive Branch of Government, says President Truman, shall make known to anybody outside the Presidential Administration any information the head of that department, or his appointed subordinate, terms taboo.

The actual terms of the order, as one writer so succintly has commented, "are so sweeping as to include the operations of every civil agency of the government— from the Bureau of Animal Husbandry to the RFC."

Every thinking and patriotic American understands, of course, that defense and military secrets of State must be safeguarded—and the free press of America, all throughout our history, has cooperated with the government to the fullest extent through war and peace to maintain the security of the Nation. President Truman's gag, however, is a horse of another color.

This Nation of free men is founded on the firm principle that government is a necessary evil which must be restricted by the people to hold it as the servant of the people. Abraham Lincoln's immortal phraseology states it clearly and plainly: "Government of the people, by the people and for the people."

Under the present circumstances it could easily become government of the Administration, by the Administration and for the Administration. Certainly the news suppression order is so broad that if the government wishes, the only thing the public may hear of it is what the Administration deems it wise or politically expedient for them to hear.

At no time in America's magnificent history has the Nation been so in danger of government absolutism and abridgement of individual liberty and freedom by government. A free press, absolutely free to report on government, always has been and should continue to be the people's guarantee that Administrations don't seize unto themselves the right of the people. Unless the President sees fit to recind his order or perhaps until Congress forces its withdrawal by withholding the funds of any government bureau which complies with it, government in America will be walking the path of all dictatorships.

Income taxes are going up again, excise taxes are on the rise, but one class of taxpayer, the baby population—is about to get a break. The 20 per cent tax on baby oils and powders finally has been repealed.

But tax relief stops this year with the baby of the family. Excise taxes, Uncle Sam's version of the sales tax, are being increased on a number of items and being newly applied to a long list of other items commonly found on Mom and Pop's shopping lists. The new rates and new taxes are expected to go into effect on the first of November.

For the past two years, the California legislature flirted with the idea of a State cigarette tax, but didn't adopt one because it was felt that particular source had already been exhausted. Apparently it had not been, for if the Federal tax bill now nearly completed is approved, the tax on a package of cigarettes will go up another penny to 8 cents. At that rate a person who smokes a pack per day will contribute $29.20 to the Federal till in a year's time.

The excise tax on new automobiles will increase from 7 percent to 10 percent. That's $150 on a car that costs $1500 at the factory. But motorists who let the tax discourage them and decide to make the old car do a while longer don't face too cheerful a prospect, either, for the tax on new parts is going up from 5 to 8 percent.

The Federal gasoline tax will go up too: another ½ cent per gallon.

An attempt was made in Congress to give taxpayers with medical expenses a break, by permitting deduction of all medical, dental and hospital expenses from income tax calculations, instead of just the excess over 5 percent of gross income which is now allowed. In arguing for the proposal, one Senator cited the absurdity of allowing a deduction for the veterinarian's bill for treating a sick cow, but not the doctor's bill for treating a sick child.

The proposal didn't pass. Most Senators seemed impressed by the argument, and in agreement that the idea offered a sound approach to the problem of relieving the burden of medical costs. But this year, Congress was looking for new tax sources, and in no mood to grant tax relief anywhere along the line, with the one exception of the tax on baby oils.

Among the new taxes Congress has levied is a 10 percent excise toll on lawnmowers, ice cream freezers, doorbell chimes, hedge-clippers and dishwashers. The new tax is likely to be applied as well to vacuum cleaners, washing machines, electric razors, cigarette lighters and fountain pens.

And let no one think he can escape the new taxes by taking to drink. The excise levy on bourbon is being raised by 30c a fifth.

Lemon Grove School News

Lemon Grove School

At the recent Administrators Conference at San Jose, Supt. Byron L. Netzley of the Lemon Grove School District was privileged to hear Dr. Stottard of the Los Angeles City Schools and Dr. Oberholtzer of the Denver City Schools. At the traditional college night, the annual banquet honored the many California colleges of visiting superintendents.

Later in Sacramento, Mr. Netzley submitted the furniture bids at the Allocation Board Meeting. The bids, covering furnishings for the Golden Avenue and Vista La Mesa additions, will appear on the Board's agenda in about two weeks.

Studenst Councils Organized

The first meeting of the Junior High student council at Lemon Grove was held last Thursday with Iver Petersen, seventh and eighth grade teacher, as sponsor. The organization scheduled a bake sale to be held at noon on October 17 at the school, and this fund raising activity will be followed by the sponsoring of a booth at the P. T. A. Hallowe'en Carnival scheduled for the 31st of this month.

Beryl Scott was elected president; Janice Jowett, vice president; Peggy Lester, secretary; Shirley Quist, treasurer.

Room representatives include Andrew Wyatt, Burton Young, Sue Martin, Robert Burgreen, Blake Taylor, Jeanie Little, Jackie Lairsey, Arvis Reed, Kristin Johnson, Grant Ballantine, Donna Berger, Bill Elkins, Kay Nevis, Barney Tumey, Mildred Yamashita, Fred Sanders, Duane Cox, Jill Sonka, Ronnie Clark, Allen Newton, John Bates, Mary Barrows. Music and physical education department representatives have not yet been selected.

Elementary School Council

The Student Council of Lemon Grove elementary school is planning to sponsor a booth at the Hallowe'en Carnival. They will also continue with the citizenship club begun last year, and will hold cafeteria parties for deserving tables. Rolland Purves, sixth grade teacher, is the sponsor. Officers will be elected at the next meeting. Room representatives are Steve Walsh, Linda Walters, Donald Brent, Brenda Epperson, Mary Telles, Richard Beers, Michael Myer, Judy Bates, Martha Allen, Caroline Wardell, Sharon Lane, Francis Farrow, Michael Calvert, Nancy Bloom, Roger Humphrey, Mar Conlee, Alan Bovang, Marilyn Sima, Randal Nisleit, Diane Rider, Beverly Cook.

School Safety Patrol to See Show

Students serving on the School Safety Patrol at Lemon Grove will be awarded this week by John van Gilse when they will be his guests at the Saturday matinee at the Grove Theatre. Included will be Warren Hagen, George Feil, David Varga, Bob Kievit, Vernon Mayes, Bob Coy, John O'conner, Fred Northcutt, John Wylie, Roy Porter; also Karen van Gilse and Russel Westphal, playground safeties.

Next Thursday evening, October 18, in the school cafeteria at 7:30 the Lemon Grove School P. T. A. will hold its second meeting of the current school year. "Tonight the Teacher Has the Floor" will be the evening's topic. Teachers from the various grade-levels will give very brief outlines of accomplishments expected, and parents and patrons will later have an opportunity for questions and discussions of these standards. Refreshments will be served and child care will be provided.

At a meeting of the association's executive board on Tuesday afternoon, Halloween Carnival plans were discussed and the results of the membership drive were reported.

Vista La Mesa School

The second grade p. m. group has written stories on its community helpers, the firemen. They have a large picture of a fireman on the bulletin board, and in the near future the class plans to visit the Lemon Grove Fire Station.

The class also has an interesting science corner where it has been studying the butterfly. Paul Bever contributed to this.

The second grade room mothers recently gave a tea for Mrs. Jessie Snell, afternoon teacher, with Mrs. Fred Knapp and Mrs. George Sherrod, co-hostesses. Mrs. Snell attended the American Childhood Education Conference on Saturday at Del Mar.

The revised edition of "Before We Read," the reading readiness book, is being used now by all the first grade classes in the Lemon Grove District. The pupils in Mrs. Grace Burks' room in the afternoon class at Vista La Mesa are enjoying this book in preparation for their early reading program. Last Tuesday afternoon, mother of the pupils entertained Mrs. Burks at a delightful tea at the home of Mrs. Albert Kruse, room mother. She was presented with a lovely corsage of pink roses. A novelty vase of flowers was also presented from the classroom.

Next Tuesday, the pupils of the class will enjoy a field trip to the San Diego Zoo, thus beginning a unit study of the zoo and its animals. First graders celebrating birthdays this month are Janet Jones and Marilyn Stauer.

Mr. Masters' fifth grade class was presented with a check for two dollars on Wednesday evening, October 3, at the first meeting of the school's P. T. A. The class will purchase a book with the money, and they are looking forward to winning the attendance award again at the November meeting. Class officers are John Conlee, president; Louanne Longmire, vice president; Phillip Winkler, secretary; Carl Rosenau, board monitor; Howard Bryant, science monitor; David Kunz, beauty moniter; and Barbara Moranville, librarian.

The fifth grade p. m. room mother chairmen, Mrs. Edwards and Mrs. Smith, were hostesses at a tea last Friday when refreshments were served to the mothers and the teacher.

Ben Schol, Vista La Mesa principal, has been busy teaching school these past two weeks in many rooms while teachers were entertained at short, informal teas given by room mothers. This is part of the school's P. T. A. "get-acquainted" program. Mrs. Schwalm, afternoon fourth grade teacher, enjoyed a tea held at the home of Mrs. V. R. Heffman, 3965 Paula Street, last Thursday afternoon where she met many mothers of her students. These fourth graders are now enjoying their new song books and the new method of learning the songs from records which accompany the books.

Monterey Heights School

Mr. Poluzzi's students of Grade 5 a. m. have elected the following class officers: John Hale, president; Sherry Garcia, vice president; Gerald Monell, secretary-treasurer; Sharon Cox and Lois Aguilar, flag raisers. The class offered congratulations to Michael Randall, Ronald Whistman, and Patricia Gould, who had birthdays this month.

Louis Poluzzi, Lemon Grove District Teachers Association representative to the California Teachers Association, Southern Section, will attend the first meeting of the delegates from the Southland on Saturday of this week in Los Angeles. He will report to the local group at a business meeting of the club on Thursday, October 25.

Last Monday morning, led by members of Mr. Poluzzi's fifth grade, the morning session held a flag-raising ceremony on the front lawn of the school. While the flag was being raised, the children gave the Pledge of Allegiance and then sang "America." This ceremony will be held each week. Students of the afternoon session are planning to hold a similar service on Friday afternoons during the lowering of the flag.

No Relief for Helix Gridders

There will be no relief this week for the injury-riddled Helix Highlanders when they face the City League champion San Diego High eleven tonight, Thursday, at 7:15 p. m. in Balboa Stadium.

The Highlanders, sorely missing Howard Fackrell, Wayne Williams, and Wayne Sweetwood, lost to injuries, bowed to the Hoover Redbirds, 32-6, last Friday night at Aztec Bowl before 6400 spectators.

The Helix club's running game was clicking, with Ernie Merk, Karl Jordan and Tom Kelly showing well in that department, but they lacked the defensive strength to stop the powerful Hoover runners, headed by Tom Chrones who scored three touchdowns on long runs through the Highland defense.

Hoover's Junior Varsity had a close call in the preliminary battle when the Helix Freshman-Sophomore club, supposedly playing above their heads, held them to a tight 13-7 win. The Highlander Sophs outplayed the Cardinal J. V. squad but didn't have the all-important breaks to triumph.

Helix High News

Helix High School band received $900 from the La Mesa Kiwanis Club to help pay for their new uniforms, the money being raised through a "white elephant" rummage sale sponsored by the club.

Helix High School students helped contribute articles for this sale and three Associated Student Body cards were offered as prizes to simulate interest. Bill Boone won with the most valuable entry, a phonograph. Betty Johnson was presented an Associated Student Body card for the smallest item, a pitcher pin; and De Ann Duea was awarded her card for the largest entry, a bird cage.

The band still needs to raise an additional $1,000. This money is to provide for uniforms for new members and more instruments for the band.

The Y-teen clubs from Helix, Grossmont, and Hoover High Schools made a trip to Mt. Palomar for a leadership conference last Saturday and Sunday, 6th and 7th. Twenty-five girls from each club in the Northwest YWCA branch attended the Palomar Y Teen Pow Wow.

Saturday evening there was a talk by Dr. Kenneth Barnhart, State College sociology professor, on the subject of "Our Boy Friends." Sunday's program included music, entertainment planned by the two clubs at Helix High School, skit and discussion groups on Our Y-teen Clubs, and a panel discussion on Our YWCA.

Case of Sal Maglie is Strange One

By GRANTLAND RICE

BASEBALL is replete with queer odds and angles, mystery and tangles, but in nothing that quite approaches the strange case of one Salvatore Maglie, star pitcher of the Giants and possibly the star pitcher of both leagues.

How could it all happen? Up until midsummer last year, Sal Maglie, born in Niagara Falls 34 years ago, was just another unknown pitcher with the Giants.

He had been in baseball for 12 years, starting with Buffalo in 1938, and yet by 1950 had won only 46 games in organized baseball—an average of four games a year.

Then suddenly Maglie starts last summer, wins 18 games and drops four for an average of .818. That's what you call pitching. This season Maglie moves into mid-September with 20 victories and six defeats for a mark of .768.

Grantland Rice

Maglie's three-year record with Buffalo was no wins and one loss, three and seven, nothing and seven—four wins against 14 setbacks, a rather fuzzy setup.

He retired in 1943 and 1944, in 1945 he won five games for the Giants and dropped four, before departing to the Mexican League where he worked four years. Then suddenly in the last two seasons he has a combined mark of 38 victories against ten defeats, a mark well above .750.

"How could this happen?" I asked the quiet, likeable Giant star. "I couldn't tell you," he said, with a slow smile. "I honestly couldn't."

Six feet two, weighing above 190 pounds, he has an ideal build for the pitching job.

"Everyone took me for granted as just another second-rate pitcher and I couldn't seem to win enough games to change things. I kept trying to learn, and I had a chance to work out several ideas while pitching in Mexico. I had a chance to pitch regularly down there—and that helped. It helped a lot."

Control the Factor

"Just what did you learn that counted most?" I asked.

"Control," Maglie said. "I have a fairly fast ball, but I don't bank on my speed to win. I'm no burner-em-by pitcher. Control and curves are enough if you have both. Control doesn't mean getting a ball over the plate. It often means pitching into a two-inch spot, low or high, inside or out.

"There are certain batters who can hit anything. But there aren't too many. By hard work I found the control I needed, and I knew pretty well what a flock of hitters could hit and what they couldn't hit. Most of them have weaknesses."

"That's what made Grover Cleveland Alexander such a great pitcher," I suggested. "A lot of hitters felt like crying when they had to bat against Old Pete."

"Control can do you a lot of good," Maglie said. "Around 1943 I had almost given up. I didn't seem to be going anywhere. I was certainly glad to get a chance to work in turn last summer. That makes a big difference to a pitcher."

I asked Leo Durocher why he had waited so long to start using Maglie as a regular.

"By the time he came back to the Giants," Leo said, "Sal was around 32 years old. He had been with the Mexican League and I knew little about him. You could see that he had kept himself in condition, but I had other pitchers I knew more about.

"Then suddenly we began to run shy of pitchers. Outside of Jansen, the staff we had didn't look so hot. So we bought Jim Hearn and put Maglie to work. You know what happened after that. We played the best ball in the league. Maglie was a wonder.

"It was a question at 34 how he'd go this season. His record answers that. I'll admit Maglie's case is one of the strangest in baseball—the case of a pitcher who started when he was 21 and didn't begin winning until he was 33. Maybe you can figure that one out. I can't."

Neither can Sal Maglie, today as fine a pitcher as either league knows, and certainly as smart a pitcher as I've seen in years.

Picking Up an Argument

Who is more important—the passer or the receiver? I have heard so many fevered words on this subject that I'm a trifle dizzier than usual.

Who would you rather have? Sammy Baugh or Dan Hutson? Otto Graham or Lavelli and Speedie?

It must be admitted that the star passer gets most of the credit. But there is much to be said for the fast, slippery, ball-gripping end who can fake you out of position and make the catches.

My old pal Jimmy Conzelman tells me Don Hutson is the most valuable football player, for a team, that he ever saw. I saw Hutson take Howell's passes and fake such stars as Bones Hamilton, Keith Topping and other Stanford stars out of position while they were all around him. Hutson turned the entire pro league upside down.

SPORTSMAN'S HORIZON

Hunting Luck?

Who has the most luck in hunting? According to Henry P. Davis, public relations manager, Remington Arms Company, Inc., "hunting luck" is a minus quantity and the fellow who has the most success in hunting is the fellow who works the hardest at it.

"Hunting is pretty much like anything else," says Davis. "We get just about what we put into it. If we're out to enjoy an outing and get the fullest benefit of the many, many facets of the outdoors in its varied moods, we can let the game bag become incidental and take our chances with 'hunter's luck.' This is probably the only way we can really get the full measure of pleasure from a trip afield, for there is a lot more to be found in hunting and fishing than just getting game or catching fish.

Luck Too Unsure

"But if we're out after 'meat in the pot'," trusting to 'hunter's luck' will seldom grease the skillet. To bag game or catch fish we must not only have a certain amount of know-how but we must also put out a considerable amount of effort in making that know-how work. I used to hunt quail with an older friend who seemed to be just in the right shooting position every time a Bob White flushed. If game was walked up, he was invariably the one who flushed it. I called him 'lucky' until observation taught me that he was working at the job of hunting every minute in the field. He was a keen student of wild life habits, knew what kind of cover to hunt at what time of day, watched the shifting of the wind, etc. His remarkable 'luck' was merely an energetic application of knowledge gained through hunting experience.

"Of course, hard work afield will not alone fill the game bag. A supply of game has to be there first. But the interested and energetic hunter will generally do something about seeing that proper habitat conditions prevail on the hunting grounds he uses regularly.

Creel Census Indicative

"A recent creel census on the fresh waters of the state of Maryland, conducted cooperatively by the Department of Game and Inland Fish and the Department of Research and Education, shows that in that state 10% of the fishermen catch 46% of the fish. And 53% of the fishermen catch the remaining 54% of the fish. What happens to the other 37% of the fishermen, you might ask. Well, according to the census, they simply catch NO fish. And that is what is generally known as 'fishermen's luck'.

"I don't know how closely these figures come to covering the game harvesting situation, but I do not think they would be far off the beam if so applied.

"In explaining the figures of the census, Harold J. Elser, biologist, Department of Research and Education, said: 'In the world of economics, a few people have large incomes, a lot of people have moderate incomes and many more are in the low income bracket. In the world of fishing, a few of the anglers catch a lot of fish, a much larger percentage catches a moderate amount of fish and another large group catches nothing. Although the fisheries manager would like to spread the catch more evenly, there is little he can do about it. The people in the "catch nothing" group are either not interested in anything but the hard-to-catch fish or are those people who do not have a sufficient amount of know-how, luck or patience.' "

Versatile Hoop Net

There are numerous ways by which a commercial fisherman may capture his thirty-five-cents-a-pound catfish and twenty-five-cent buffalo. He can use hoop nets, trotline, gill nets and trammel nets.

The hoop net is the most versatile and popular of the lot, with the possible exception of the trotline. Hoop nets are simple in design, their success lying in the fisherman's skill and his ability to think like a fish. They are constructed from white oak or dogwood hoops, three feet in diameter and covered with tarred net so as to form a tunneled cylinder. Once a fish enters the first funnel or "throat," it is unlikely that he will find his way out.

Yard Training

Since it's about time for taking gun dogs afield again, a word about yard training may not be amiss here. Before a pup is taken afield, he should have some private tutoring to learn simple obedience and the meaning of a few spoken commands.

This yard training, as it is called, may begin in the pup's sixth or seventh month—or as soon as he's old enough to know what it's at about.

Serve Baked Beans for Informal Suppers
(See Recipes Below)

Festive Buffet Suppers

THIS IS the season for a flurry of sports activity such as football, baseball and hockey. If there are teen-aged boys and girls in your home, or if the man of the house is an enthusiast of one of the sports, you're in line to be asked to serve at least one "after the game supper."

These are wonderful occasions because you need food hearty and easy to prepare. The serving is even more simply done because the occasion is so informal. Push the dining room table against the wall, or use a large buffet.

A centerpiece set against the wall is nice, if it's seasonal. Then plan to cover most of the table with food, and leave a bit of space for a stack of plates, napkins and usually, a single fork for each person. Most buffet suppers of this kind can be eaten readily with a single fork.

Another centerpiece uses a shallow bowl of garden flowers in a massed arrangement. Use needle-point flower holders for the flowers, and also for attaching "penants" made small, with construction paper, and glued to thin sticks.

One menu which will certainly prove popular includes baked beans, served in a bean pot or an old-fashioned casserole of the pottery type.

Serve this with molasses bran brown bread with cream cheese, if you like, sliced tomatoes, pickles, celery, and an apple crisp pudding or a fruit cobbler for dessert.

Deluxe Baked Beans
(Serves 6)

- 1 uncooked medium ham hock (1½ pound)
- 1 No. 2 can baked beans, without tomato sauce
- 1 large onion, peeled and chopped
- ½ cup catsup
- 3 tablespoons brown sugar
- 1½ tablespoons dry mustard
- ¼ teaspoon black pepper
- 1 tablespoon vinegar
- 1 tablespoon worcestershire sauce
- 4 whole cloves
- 1 No. 2 can pineapple chunks

Remove meat from ham bone and add to beans which may be placed right into the casserole. Stir in onion, then pour in catsup and syrup from pineapple. Sprinkle over all the brown sugar, mustard, pepper, vinegar and worcestershire sauce. Dot four chunks of the pineapple with the cloves and reserve for last. Sink ham bone into center of the bean mixture, and arrange pineapple around the bone. Place the pineapple with cloves on last. Cover and bake in a moderate (350°F.) oven for one hour; remove cover and bake about 15 minutes longer until brown. For a crowd, multiply recipe accordingly and bake in large pans.

Sift together flour, soda, salt and cinnamon; add to molasses mixture stirring only until just combined. Fill two greased cans (the size used for baked beans) about ⅔ full. Bake in a moderate (350°F.) oven for 45 minutes. Remove from cans and serve while hot.

LYNN SAYS:

Refrigerate Foods To Speed Preparation

If you don't want to do all your food preparation before a meal, many good things can be mixed in advance, then refrigerated until cooking or baking time.

Thin batters like those for waffles and griddlecakes can be made in advance then refrigerated, provided they are tightly covered to prevent crusting. If desired, thin with a little milk before using.

Do you have difficulty keeping the breaded coating on meats and fish when frying? Chill after breading and they'll stay on better.

Yeast dough for rolls, buns or bread refrigerates well when covered, for several days. Store shaped or in bowls and let rise in a 80°F. oven or at room temperature before baking.

Cookies will be more tender and crisp if you allow the dough to stand in the refrigerator. Or, slip well-wrapped dough in one of the freezing trays if business is "rushing."

FIRST AID TO THE AILING HOUSE

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

Walls Cracked by Earthquake

QUESTION: After a recent earthquake I noticed that the outside plaster of my house was cracked all over on all four sides of the house. What can I use to fill up these cracks?

ANSWER: I suppose you mean "stucco" when you speak of "plaster." If the stucco had only a few large cracks, they could probably be repaired. Since it is cracked all over, you may need to have it stripped off and new stucco applied. Large cracks should first be widened and deepened, then patched with a cement mortar. The usual mortar mixture for stucco repair is one part Portland cement, either white or gray, and three parts clean, coarse sand, with just enough water to make a workable mixture. Or you can get a ready mixed patching mortar—which is not the same thing as patching plaster. When widening a crack for filling, cut into it so that the groove is wider at the lath than at the surface. Brush out all loose cement, and then soak the edges well with water. Pack with mortar, and just before the patch sets, work the surface into a texture to match that of the stucco. Keep the patches wet for three or four days so that the cement will cure. Sometimes a white stucco wall can be matched with a white cement and light yellow building sand, or white marble dust. For a good even effect, you can coat the whole wall with a dampproof cement paint. Very narrow hair line cracks can be filled by painting the stucco with the cement base paint. Get your materials from a dealer in building or masonry supplies. A stucco repair man would know what would be best to do.

Salad Dressing

A quick salad dressing can be made by blending two tablespoons of tomato paste with six tablespoons of mayonnaise. Season this with grated onion, a dash of chili powder, and a few drops of tabasco sauce. This is very good with meat or fish salads.

Half Day Sessions Work Hardships on Everyone

Many Grossmont and Helix students are discovering that the half day session under which the school is forced to operate this year handicaps them in many ways.

The school day has been reduced and class periods shortened, thus placing students and teachers under greater pressure in order to accomplish the same as in normal years. More homework assignments and more time spent in home study plus greater concentration during the class periods are essential to preserve the achievement level of students.

Many students have been forced to drop a course because of the class schedule or the bus schedule. Buses cover some areas only for periods 1 through 5 and other areas for periods 2 through 6. So if one lives in the wrong area he loses the opportunity to have the desired extra subject. Because so many rooms must be reserved for period 6 for Helix High and because of the limited bus schedule, only 500 Grossmont students may have a 6 period schedule. Others complain about the early hour for beginning of school with the dislocation of regular family schedules for breakfast, lunch and dinner. The entire family is affected by the unearthly hour set for the beginning of school for Grossmont area, while Helix students will have to use flashlights on their way home from their afternoon classes.

School authorities and school administrators are bending every effort toward completion of the new Helix High School before next September.

Allocations of critical materials have been obtained and the remaining eight buildings will be under construction in November if the schedule outlined by the board is followed. Harold G. Hughes, Assistant Superintendent, has been very active in obtaining the needed priorities and pushing plans to completion in the face of red tape slow-downs typical in the state school building program.

The new Helix High, designed for 1600 students, will provide specialized instructional facilities in art, homemaking, science and physical education similar to the new buildings at Grossmont and the plant will feature the best obtainable in educational effectiveness, using low-cost materials. Because of deficiencies in the state school construction program, no auditorium or gymnasium can be built.

District Superintendent Lewis F. Smith stated that completion of Helix High, probably by September, 1952, will bring with it a return to a standard school day for both Grossmont and Helix High students with greater educational opportunities in the classroom and in activities for all. We want to stop cheating our children of their birthright as Americans, he concluded.

Local Medical Reserve Officer Gets Citation

Early in September, 23 young Naval Reserve medical officers, now on duty at Balboa Naval Hospital, were officially commended by top Army and Navy commanders in Korea for exemplary service in the Far East war zone. All live in San Diego and vicinity.

Lieut. Robert A. Loeffler, 2034 Dayton Dr., was one of three to receive Navy Commendation Ribbons and the following citation.

"For meritorious service in connection with naval operations against the enemy while serving as a member of Surgical Team Number Two from 27 August to 1 November 1950.

"Having no previous experience in the employment of Surgical Teams, which was a new concept, Lieutenant Loeffler assisted in formulating plans for and in securing medcal supplies and materials for large scale casualty handling aboard the U. S. S. LST 611.

"In a period of five days at Kobe, Japan, he contributed greatly in improvising a method of casualty handling, indoctrination of the Surgical Team, and storing surgical supplies and equipment in parts of the ship to meet possible phases of anticipated activity.

"During the amphibious assault at Inchon, Korea, on 15 September 1950, when his ship was beached under enemy fire, a total of 79 casualties were handled and given surgical treatment in the first 12 hours. Lieutenant Loeffler's coolness while under fire, superior surgical ability and judgment and his zealous performance of duty were largely responsible for the successful care of casualties.

"After the initial assault phase he continued to assist in the treatment and humanitarian care of injured Korean civilians.

"On 19 September 1950 Lieutenant Loeffler assisted in the improvisation of a hospital at Kimpo airfield and assisted in the performance of surgical operations on Marine casualties and civilians until the 28th of September 1950.

"Throughout the above, he displayed outstanding courage, resourcefulness and complete disregard for his own personal safety. His overall performance was exemplary, an outstanding contribution to the war effort, and in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Naval Service."

Fall Gardens Being Planted

Many home gardeners of San Diego County are planting vegetables now for fall and winter harvest. Because of the shorter days and cooler weather, growth of crops normally is slower in the fall than in the spring.

To help speed growth, many home gardeners use a fertilizer on the plot. Poultry, rabbit or other manure is satisfactory because it not only supplies plants with nutrients, but also adds organic matter and improves the texture of the soil. Poultry or rabbit manure is applied at the rate of 15 to 20 pounds per 100 square feet, while that from other livestock is applied at a heavier rate.

If manure is not available, a commercial fertilizer may be used.

Gardens prepared now often will require a pre-irrigation to facilitate spading and working of the soil. The soil should be moistened to a depth of 12 inches, then after the soil has dried sufficiently the manure or commercial fertilizer is applied, and the soil is turned.
